01. OVERVIEW

Background

In the current complex and challenging global economic situation, economies may encounter difficulties in increasing their residents' income, which hinders inclusive economic growth. The IMF's World Economic Outlook in April 2024 pointed out that the pace of economic recovery varied from economy to economy, and the recovery of low-income developing economies was slower than the average. According to the World Bank, between 2020 and 2023, the growth rates of GNI per capita in high-income, upper middle-income, and low-income economies were 19.5%, 25.7%, and 17.6%, respectively, which also showed that some economies might have encountered obstacles in increasing residents' income, which may not be conducive to the inclusiveness of economic growth. This project emphasizes the importance of structural reform in accelerating income growth and advancing a more resilient, sustainable, and inclusive economy. In the meantime, enhancing inclusive growth is a pillar of China's IAP for the Enhanced APEC Agenda on Structural Reform (EAASR), with expanding the middle-income group as one of the key priorities. This project may help APEC economies to learn advanced experience from each other, thereby promoting the implementation of EAASR to expand the middle-income group in the APEC region as well.

Objectives

The key objectives of this event are to:

- identify structural reform tools that can assist APEC economies in promoting income growth, improving the quality of life for average people, and creating a resilient and sustainable future for all.
- supports the third pillar of the Enhanced APEC Agenda of Structural Reform(EAASR), which is "ensuring that all groups in society have equal access to opportunities for more inclusive, sustainable growth, and greater well-being".
